HOW ABOUT IT, MR. MARTIN?

What Has Become of the Cases Against Slevin and O'Connor?

BOTH TRIED SIX MONTHS AGO

The trial of Capt. John Thomas Stephenson, which has reached the dividing line between prosecution and defense, will be resumed Tuesday morning, and the question uppermost among the officers and hangers-on at Headquarters is: "What defense can the Captain offer to the formidable testimony of Merchant Edwards and his book-keeper, the express driver and the telliale way-bil book, and the receipt bearing the alleged signature of the Captain's wife for the barrel of apples and the four baskets of peaches, alleged to be part of a 50 briber."

It seems to have been forgotten by the Police Board that away back last April they tried two captains, who are still in command of their precincts. Tried them on charges similar to those on which Capts. Doherty, Cross and Devery were tried, and backed up by testimony similar to that adduced in these laster cases.

Capt. Edward Slevin, of the Fourth Precinct, where all the sailor dives and other low brothels flourish, was charged by agents of the Parkhurst Society with failing to suppress disorderly houses in his precinct. The evidence went to prove that several such places were running full blast, but there was no charge of bribery.

Blevin was tried before the full Board, President Martin and Commissioners McClave. MacLean and Sheehan. That was April 27.

"The World" revealed that in the Second Precinct there was a fully organized gambling-house running in the Merchants' Hotel, and that at least a part of Capt. O'Connor's squad not only knew it, but were acting as bouncers for the establishment.

Capt. O'Connor was tried April 17, and the witnesses against him were John J. Lynch, Daniel J. Smith, William, Mayston and William Lane O'Neill.

No decision has ever been announced in either of these cases, and Gen. Kerwinhah do nover heard of either case until an "Evening World" reporter called his attention to them to-day.

Prosecutor Wellman is in Southampton, and Mr. Goff was not to be found to answer Mr. Wellman's statement that it was "Mr. Goff's best man."

were known, while patrolmen in the Department.

The dismissal of these five men, on the heels of the breaking of Capt. Michael Doherty, Ward Men Hock and Meshan, and Sergeams McKenna, Liebers, Parkinson and Jordan, of the Pourteenth Frechet, has thrown a gloom over the uniformed force, and the policemen are very serious in their demeanor to-day.

It was beleved, apparently, that the Commissioners would save some of the accused. That they would break Capt. Devery and his ward man Glennon was a foregone conclusion, for they offered to defense. But there was much doubt hithe minds of policemen about the fate of Smith and Burns, and as for Capt. Gross there seemed to be a general belif that in view of the hard fight he made in his own defense and the character of the witnesses who accused him the Board would make an exception in his case.
